Here and There

Editorial By ALEX. H. WASHBURN

AT 2:30 o'clock Tuesday afternoon the ministers of Hempstead county will hold a mass meeting for the people in Hope city hall to hear a prominent Little Rock preacher speak on the prohibition question and to lay plans for a county referendum against the liquor stores in Hope. The Star is opposing that referendum, not because we are "a whisky newspaper," for we aren't. There is more than $1,000 in rejected liquor advertising the last eight months that says we are not a whisky newspaper. The point at issue between your newspaper and the preachers is simply this: The ministers do not have a monopoly on common sense when tackling the problems of taxation and public morality.

Americans Doubt Filipino Republic Will Be Success

Quezon Successful Politician
But Inexperienced Administrator

RESTRAINED BY U. S.

American Observers Predict
Japanese Control Within Few Years

By EDWARD E. BOMAR

Associated Press Correspondent

MANILA.—(AP)—The Filipino leaders are confident they will make a success of the Philippine Commonwealth government to be established

November 15, whatever the outlook for complete independence. 10 years

hence, but some well-informed Americans and foreigners are pessimistic.

While all public expressions are of the sweetness and light, under privately even some of the outstanding

Filipinos admit qualms.

"The odds are heavily against the commonwealth," a high American official said privately. "But there still is a chance for success."

Disorder Threats Seen

"Every surface anxiety is favorable,

the budget is balanced, and right at the outset of the new regime there is a $12,500,000 windfall from the United States, representing nine months proceeds of the 1934 American excise tax on Philippine coconut oil. This is about half the insular government's annual budget."

The problems, as outlined by another

American official who because of his position could not permit the use of his name, are chiefly economic, but also involve public order.

"Everybody who knows the real situation is worried over the possibility of violence from extremist followers of General Emilio Aguinaldo because of their belief they were defrauded

in the September 17 election," he said earnestly.

Anti-Quezon Plots Found

"We know there have been one or more actual plots to assassinate President-elect Manuel Quezon," the director of General Douglas MacArthur.

Aguinaldo pulled a third as many votes

as Quezon in an election shot through with frauds, yet they have not a single voice in the national assembly of 88 members.

"That is a dangerous political situation. And there is no new assembly election for three years and the next presidential election is six years hence."

The Filipinos are undertaking to organize an army, under the direction of General Douglas MacArthur.

That may cost millions.

"Quezon has announced he favors government help for private industry,

opening the possibility of financial difficulties like in the World War period,

when the Filipinos were in control.

Business Ability Lacking

"Quezon is absolutely without experience as an administrator, whatever," said one American official.

County Election on Liquor to Be Discussed Tuesday

Rev. Arden P. Blaylock to Speak at Hope City Hall
at 2:30 p. m.

PLAN COUNTY BODY

Capacity Crowd Hears Dr.
Ira Landrith Here Sunday NightA county-wide mass meeting for the discussion of the question of legalized liquor stores will be held at Hope city hall Tuesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.At that time the Rev. Arden P.
Blaylock, pastor of First Baptist church of Little Rock, will address the meeting.Dr. Blaylock is considered one of the strongest pastor-evangelists in the state, and is widely known because of his uncompromising stand against organized evil. He has recently been in a crusade against gambling in his own city, and comes to Hope at the request of pastors of all denomina-tions from all parts of Hempstead county.

In view of the fact that no organization has been completed for the furtherance of a local option elec-tion for the near future, there will be held at the conclusion of the mass-meeting a business session at which time a general chairman and neces-sary committees will be elected by the people of the county.A congregation which filled the lower floor and balcony heard Dr.

Ira Landrith speak at First Methodist church to union service of Baptist,
Christian, Presbyterian and Meth-odist churches of the city, Sunday night.

Dr. Landrith carried his large audience with him for an hour, as he forcefully presented reasons for local option against liquor stores. He interspersed his message with flashes of wit and humor. He gave many telling arguments against liquor. Among the vivid things he said was that UncleSam had taken the flag which led our boys in the fight to make the world safe for democracy, and had wrapped that flag around the brewery and distilleries for protection in their attack upon youth today.A very gratifying feature of the service was the extremely large number of young people present, who practically filled the balcony. Dr.

Landrith made a splendid appeal foradults to protect the youth of today against the evil of liquor.

protection for both bridges in time of high water.

Tariffs Are Cut by U. S. and Canada

Doubling of Trade Between Them Within Few Years Is ForecastWASHINGTON.—(AP)—Court action
to test the constitutionality of the law under the new Canadian-American trade treaty was negotiated by hunt-ing Monday by the lumber industry's representatives.The 50 per cent slash which the treaty provides in the duties on Canadian lumber was described by Na-tional Lumber Manufacturers association officials as "paralyzing to the general economy of important parts of the country."Tariffs Slashes
WASHINGTON.—(AP)—An American-
Canadian trade agreement embracing sweeping mutual tariff slashes designed to promote "general economic recovery" in both nations was made public Sunday by President Roosevelt.

The President expressed belief that the pact would result in a doubling of trade between the two countries in a year or two, with consequent reduction of unemployment.

The State Department said Canadian import changes will be lowered on products of the United States

valued at $415,000,000 worth in the year ended March 1936—the last before the dominion boosted levies. It estimated that this country's tariff reduction would affect commodities which accounted for two-thirds of $503,000,002

Boat Rams Bridge and Both Are Crippled

A boat that couldn't stop and a bridge that couldn't be raised suffered heavy damage in this Chicago river collision. Because an elevated train was passing over it, the Wells Street span could not be raised as the 620-ton sandboat R. Dahlke approached, and the boat, unable to resist, smashed into the lowered span. Firemen worked several hours to extricate the craft.

animously and unreservedly announced Monday night that a new nation—that of North China—would be born this week.These dispatches, by the Rongyo

that the new nation, like Manchoukuo,

The population of the new nation is estimated at 95 million persons.

LITTLE ROCK.—(AP)—The Arkansas
Supreme Court affirmed Monday the death sentences of two negroes forcriminally assaulting a white woman, with the ruling that there was nothing in the record to show that they had been denied the privileges and immunities guaranteed under the constitution.

The condemned negroes are, Bubbles Clayton 21, and Jim Caruthers,

19, who were assessed the extreme penalty for assaulting a woman near Blytheville December 21, 1934.

The defense cited Alabama's cele-

New Drive Expected

In Africa the next big push awaited

the arrival from Rome of the invading armies' new high commander

—Gen. Pietro Badoglio, Mussolini's
chief of general staff.

Although official statements indicated that no change in the conduct of the Ethiopian invasion was imminent, many at the front thought the ap-pointment of Badoglio, replacing the venerable Gen. Emilio de Bono, might mean a swift, fighting advance by the Italians.

Scattered engagements in the occupied territory continued. The first major battle of the northern front, strategists believed, may come in the next big push on Amba Alaji, south of Makale.At Asmara there were rumors that another important chiefdom might fol-low the lead of Ras Gugsa, traitorous son-in-law of Emperor Haile Selassie, and come over to the Italian side.

"Black Eagle" Leaves

Hubert Julian, the "black eagle of Harlem," left Addis Ababa, declaring he was "through with Ethiopia." He resigned his Ethiopian army commis-sion and started home because, he said, his authority was not respected.Three members of an American string quartet, set upon by Black shirts in Rome because, they said, they failed to salute a funeral procession, arrived in Paris to declare they would seek an American diplomatic protest
on the incident.K. of C. Troubles

Your Health

By Dr. Morris Fishbein

The most important and most critical period in one's life is at birth. A person's entire life may be affected for good or evil, physically, by the way in which he is brought into this world.

Care of the new-born baby is of greatest importance. As soon as a baby is born, the doctor cleans its mouth so that material may not be inhaled into the lung and thus set up an inflammation or pneumonia.

Immediately after birth a newly born baby should always be wrapped in a warm blanket. Then when the cord which unites it to the mother has ceased to carry blood and has been cut, the infant is placed in a warm bed, with hot blankets and kept warm with suitable hot water bottles for several days away from the body and sufficiently protected to keep from burning.

A newly born baby has difficulty in adjusting itself to changes in temperature. Therefore, its temperature must be controlled from the outside until its own temperature-regulating mechanism begins to work.

Most experts agree that the skin of a new-born baby should be washed daily for a while, after which neutral or superfatted soaps may be used.

Because there is a tendency for newly born babies to lose weight, they should be permitted to lie as quietly as possible and should not be disturbed by movements or noise.

New-born babies do not take food well, either from the mother or artificially, in the form of cow's milk. Feeding by the mother is the safest method for improving the baby's nutrition, and it is well-established that babies fed by their mothers are sick less often and die less frequently than those fed artificially.

A baby should be fed by its mother at least once in the first 24 hours and attempts should always be made to have the mother feed the baby before any resort is made to artificial feeding.

If, however, the mother's milk is insufficient in amount, or if for other reasons she cannot undertake to feed the baby, the doctor will supply a suitable formula for each child.

After the third or fourth day every baby should be given opportunity to nurse regularly according to a schedule which the doctor will establish.

A Book a Day

By Bruce Catton

Mr. S. S. Van Dine is with us again, guiding Philo Vance through a tale which displays very neatly the detective's profound erudition, and which also reveals him as having an unsuspected human side. Indeed, there is but one thing wrong with it; it isn't worth a detective story.

The book is "The Garden Murder Case" (Scribner's $2) and it tells about gentlemanly gamblers in a New York penthouse. One of the lads gets murdered just after they get their bets down on the fourth race, and Vance happens to be on the scene.

The tale is far from satisfactory, as a thriller, but it does give Mr. Van Dine a chance to show how much he knows about race horses and horse racing.

There is better fare to be found in "The Sullen Sky Mystery," by H. C. Bailey (Crime Club: $2). This story reintroduces that old Englishman, Joshua Clunk, a sanctimonious little thyster lawyer who goes about humming hymns, confounding Scotland Yard, and solving abstruse murder cases, and an engaging figure he is.

We have a corpse found on a beach, an ex-convict in a position of deep suspicion, and some high-powered shenanigans by Mr. Clunk. The tale is highly satisfactory from start to finish.

For Sax Rohmer fans, mention must be made of "The Bat Flies Low" (Crime Club: $2). Here Mr. Rohmer brings an eligible New York bachelor into juxtaposition with a lovely descendant of Cleopatra, mixes in a suitable amount of ancient Egyptian menace, and lets the bat fly.

If you go for Sax Rohmer, you'll find him missing out his standard brand of words here.

BARBS

So far, the average communique seems to be living up to at least the last part of its name.

U. S. colleges should sponsor horse races instead of football, says Nebraska dean. Wouldn't a horse look silly winding the university clock?

"U. S. Gives Up Hunt for William Fox." One is bound to lose interest in this sport unless done in the proper "Yoicks" and "View Halloo" fashion.

Your Children

By Olive Roberts Barton

"Mother," said Marion when Henrietta had gone, "why are you always so interested in my friends when they come here? You had a good chance to show her that dress you're knitting for me. It's what I brought her over for. But you kept on talking about her music and her violin and about the way grandpa used to sneak his fiddle behind the barn to play. I couldn't get in a word."

Mother smiled. "She had a good time, didn't she? When she left she kissed me and said she was coming back."

"When you finish that dress I'll wear it over to her house. I'll bet her mother won't make a fuss over me or even notice it. She'll keep on talking with her music and her violin and about the way grandpa used to sneak his fiddle behind the barn to play. I couldn't get in a word."

Mother smiled. "She had a good time, didn't she? When she left she kissed me and said she was coming back."

"Way to True Sophistication" "And, of course, you'll be bored to death."

"You said it. I always am."

"All right, then. Can't you see I'm trying to train you in real sophistication? That I'm training you how to make friends and keep them? By being interested in other people's affairs instead of your own?"

"I thought there was something I was being trained in. There always is."

"You'll never find anyone else thinking that wearing new clothes and making everybody feel like the band behind the drum-major is going to make you popular, you're wrong, my darling."

A few days later had brought young Brown home from the office to help with some extra work.

Y. B. began to talk of dogs. Dogs he owned, had owned, would own. Breeds, pedigrees, diseases and care. But every other sentence was punctuated with the name of some important person who had "personally" told him this, or asked him that or mentioned the other thing.

The young man wasn't talking dogs. He was pumping up his ego. He was showing off his importance.

Social Two-Facedness His host and hostess tried at times tactfully to change the subject just for a little relief. But back they were flung instantly into the kennels again. It was quite obvious that the guest was interested only in crabmeat cocktails, fried chicken and frozen pudding—and dogs and himself.

"When," said Marion when the study door closed on the two men.

"You see what I mean now," her mother remarked. "He is decidedly provincial, that young man. But he thinks he's sophisticated, a person of the world. Not interested in anybody or anything but himself, very, very green."

"Mother," Marion eyed her carefully. "You're the cat's newfangled soap."

"Mean the dog's flea exterminator. No wonder dad says you're smooth. I see now."

"Just training you," laughed mother. "Now when he emerges, say to him, 'What a beautiful tie—and, oh, how we enjoyed your talk.'"

"I'm afraid," announced Marion. "that you are also a fraud."

"Aren't we all?" mother reminded her.

Glorifying Yourself

By Alicia Hart

It is a bad idea indeed to use too much makeup this year. Lips that look caked and eyes which are covered with heavy coats of mascara and eyeshadow simply aren't fashionable.

Wherever you go, you're bound to notice that the smartest women wear enough makeup to enhance their natural beauty and dramatize their best features, but certainly not enough to make their complexions look painted.

Another Question

ear, followed in the same direction across the back, then shot forward in front of the right ear and covered part of her cheek.

Another girl—blond and rather fragile—had a coiffure that looked as though it had been brushed upward from the nape of her neck to her forehead. It was straight and lacquered in place. Bangs were curled in tight ringlets and lacquered, too.

Antioch Miss Ethel Tompkins visited her sister Mrs. Earl Mohon Thursday. Mrs. W. W. Mohon and Mrs. Belle

Jones were shopping in Prescott Wednesday.

Rev. C. A. Calhoun of Faynesville, La., Misses Irene and Fern Cook and Brady Cook spent Wednesday with Mr. and Mrs. Lee Cook and was supper guests of Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Green of Emmet.

Rich and Douglas Dougan, Mrs.

asked her. "Back-to town," she said. "Back to town? What town?"

"Oh—" again she moved one hand in a meaningless gesture. "Any town. I don't know. I just wanted to get away."

He looked at her silently for a moment. "Why?"

"I—I didn't know what I'd got into," she said.

"Oh. And now you do know, you don't like it. Is that it?"

SHE nodded. Standing under his inhuman stare, she felt that she knew just how a bird felt when it looked, helpless, into the hypnotic eyes of a snake.

"What's the matter with us, anyhow?" said Jackson. "Why don't you like us? We're nice people."

His voice was edged with clumsy sarcasm. She made no reply.

"You like that boy friend of yours first rate, don't you?" he continued. "You went for him plenty. I understand, before this."

Her heart sank as she realized that he indeed was the very worst thing about it; that she had let herself in for all of it by giving way to a senseless infatuation for Sandy Harkins. She had discarded the honest and loyal affection of a youth like Bobby Wallace to cast her fortunes with an outlaw!

She found herself nodding miserably.

"Well, what's the matter, then?" asked Jackson. "He's just as nice now as he was before. Still brushes his hair the same way and wears the same kind of clothes. Looks just the same and talks just the same. You'll get along with him fine. . . . And with the rest of us, too. You just got to get used to us, that's all."

She shook her head. "I can't," she whispered. He looked her over from head to foot with slow, curious deliberation.

"Oh, yes, you can," he said. "I'll tell you this sister. When you put in with him, you put in with all of us. And puttin' in's a lot easier than pullin' out again. You're stickin', now—for always. And don't forget it."

A door opened, and Sandy himself came into the hall. He looked from Jean to Jackson in unspoken inquiry.

"Your girl friend," said Jackson. "thinks she wants to go home. You talk her out of it. You're kind of gifted, that way." He turned to go, and added in a rasping voice. "Or kick the daylight out of her. If that's easier. I don't care."

HE went away and left her in the cavernous old hallway, with its dark woodwork, its old-fashioned chandelier and its dim light. Sandy came over and put a hand on her shoulder.

"What's the matter, kid?" he asked.

"I don't suppose," she said. "that it's any use reminding you how you've lied to me and deceived me and—"

"Not a bit," said Sandy blithely. "Not a bit of use. You see, I wanted you—bad. And—"

"And that was the only way you could get me," she said bitterly. Sandy was unabashed. "You got to take what you want in the only way you can get it, in this world," he said.

"Oh. And now you do know, you don't like it. Is that it?"

SHE ran upstairs and fled to the room that had been assigned to her. Once inside, she hastily locked the door, then she dropped on the bed, wishing that she could ease her emotions with a torrent of tears but finding herself utterly unable to do so.

She did not know how long she stayed there, staring up, wide-eyed into the darkness overhead, while a thousand self-reproaches raced through her mind. At last, unable from sheer nervousness to lie still any longer, she got up and walked aimlessly to the window. There she slumped down on the floor, her chin resting on the window sill.

The wind had risen, and she could hear the waves beating on the shore of the lake quite plainly now. There was a moon, too, peering through a thin cloud-rack and filling the clearing with a misty, ghostly half-light. For a long time she remained there, dependently looking down at the unkempt lawn.

Then, in the shadows beyond the carriage house, a movement caught her eye. She looked more closely. A man was walking around the outbuilding, coming up the path toward the house. There was something familiar about him—some thing about the way he held his head, the way he walked. . . .

He came closer and closer, walking steadily up to the house, and as Jean looked down she recognized him—and thought that her heart would stop beating from sheer, overpowering joy. For the man was Larry Glenn. He held a pistol in one hand, and he stalked up onto the porch, where she could no longer see him, and hammered thunderously on the great oaken door.

"I am a Department of Justice agent, and we have the place surrounded," he called out in a loud voice. "If you'll come out peacefully, no one will be hurt."

There was a tense silence. Then, somewhere below, came the crash of a gun going off, and another and another. Quick spurts of flame stabbed through the darkness beyond the lawn. Larry Glenn leaped down from the porch and slipped behind a tree trunk near the corner of the house. A racket more intense and headier than anything Jean had ever dreamed of split the night air—shots, yells, the splintering of woodwork, the jangling crash of broken windows—

And then, from sheer excess of nerve strain, Jean Dunn fell to the floor in a faint.

Not Understood

Not understood, we move along nsunder. Our paths grow wider as the seasons creep; Why life is life. And then we go to sleep—Not understood.

Not understood, we gather false impressions And hug them closer as the years go by;

The virtues often seem to us transgressions, And thus men rise and fall and live and die—Not understood.

How many cheerless, lonely hearts are aching For lack of sympathy—ah, day by day How cheerless, lonely hearts are breaking, How many noble spirits pass away—Not understood.

O God! That men could see a little clearer, Or judge less harshly where they cannot see— O Goli! That men would draw a little nearer To one another. They'd be nearer there— And understood—Selected.

With Mrs. A. F. Hanegan leading the Hope Garden club held a most interesting meeting on Friday afternoon at the attractive home of Mrs. M. M. Smyth on South Main street. Beautiful flowers adorned the rooms adding their beauty to the cheer and warmth that contrasted so strongly with the cold November day. Bulls for winter forcing led the discussion

Double Event at Wrestling Show

Morrasic vs. Bald Eagle and McEuen vs. Owen Davis Wednesday Night

A double main-event is offered Wednesday night at the American Legion arena, Fair park. In the opening tussle Fred Morrasic, former star football player at Northwestern university, meets the Bald Eagle of Burbank, Alaska. Both of these grapplers are new comers. In the second main event Billy McEuen of Fort Worth, Texas, returns to take on Owen Davis, former star performer at Oklahoma A. & M. college. While a student there he is said to have won the national amateur wrestling championship. McEuen will be remembered here for his rough and tumble bout with Jack McDonald last summer in the old arena. Courtesy tickets will be honored but all complimentary passes will be suspended for this match. The doors open at 7:30. The first match starts at 8 p. m.

Sister Mary's Kitchen

By Mrs. Mary E. Dague

Any serious attempt to give a new slant to the Thanksgiving dinner ends only in disappointment because the peculiar charm of this feast is its fond memories and traditions.

But there are little touches and necessities which lend zest and interest to the feast without offending the most loyal descendant of a Mayflower ancestress. In fact, the ancestress with her spirit of adventure and daring would doubtless approve of them—of baked peaches, squash and walnut croquettes.

Thanksgiving Pudding
Four cups milk, 1½ cups broken crackers, 4 tablespoons molasses, 1 cup sugar, 4 eggs, 1 teaspoon salt, 4 tablespoons melted butter, ½ teaspoon cinnamon, 1½ cups cooked raisins. Scald milk and pour over crackers. Let stand until cool. Pour boiling water over raisins, cover and let stand until absorbed. Pour off any water not absorbed by fruit. Beat eggs slightly and add to cracker and milk mixture with sugar, molasses, salt, butter and spices. Mix well and add plumped raisins. Pour into a well buttered baking dish and bake very slowly for two and one-half hours. Stir twice during the first half hour to prevent raisins from settling to the bottom of the dish. Serve with hard sauce or sterling sauce.

Sterling Sauce
One-fourth cup butter, 3-4 cup light brown sugar, 3 tablespoons whipping cream, ½ teaspoon vanilla. Work butter with a wooden spoon until very creamy. Slowly beat in sugar which has been rolled until smooth. Stir in vanilla and gradually beat in cream. File lightly in a dish and garnish with snips of candied cherries.

Baked Peaches
Eight large peach halves, 1 tablespoon butter, ½ teaspoon mace, grated rind of one lemon, ½ cup peach juice, ½ cup sugar, 2 tablespoons brandy. Drain peaches from juice and arrange in a baking dish. Dot with bits of butter and add sugar, mace, brandy and peach juice. Grate lemon rind over the top. Cover baking dish and

The Liquor Traffic

Editor The Star: The liquor traffic is hoary with age and sin. From the dawn of civilization until today the use of intoxicating drinks has been one of the most serious hindrances to human progress and one of the most fruitful causes of human degradation and misery. For thousands of years suffering and ruin have followed the train of this hideous destroyer. It has damned untold millions of individuals both body and soul, it has ruined millions of homes; it has doomed millions of children to ignorance, disease and depravity. It has been the fruitful mother of poverty, idleness, vice, and crime. It has corrupted all social institutions and has been a perpetual menace to civilized government. That there has been and still is a wide-spread effort backed by large financial resources to discredit any prohibition movement is a matter of common knowledge.

Men in high positions here in our own county have not only expressed contempt for temperance, but are openly championing the liquor cause. We anticipate your answer to this. You all including the saloon keeper, are fighting for real temperance. Remember there are no whisky men today, but also remember the people know the honest from the pseudo-temperance leaders. The liquor question draws a distinct line between the two elements of our population so that we have a study of personnel as well as of method.

We are not saying that all of the bad element are on one side and the good on the other. But apart from exceptions the distinction is very definite. We know exactly where to find all criminals, crooks, hoodlums, gangsters, racketeers and bootleggers. Their effort has been made by some anti-prohibitionists to classify a portion of this group as prohibitionists but they refuse to be so classified. In a recent issue of your paper you squash, 2-egg yolks; 1-8-teaspoon nutmeg, 4-tablespoons butter, 4-tablespoons cream, 2-tablespoons salt, 1-8-teaspoon pepper, 1-cup chopped nut meats. Walnuts, pecans, hickory nuts or Brazil nuts are best in the croquettes, although peanuts may be used. Put squash through a ricer to be sure it is perfectly smooth. Beat egg yolks until thick. Add to mashed squash with seasoning, butter, cream and nuts. Mix well and spread on a platter to cool. Shape as wanted and put in refrigerator until ready to fry. Roll in fine dry bread crumbs, dip in egg slightly beaten, with one tablespoon milk, roll again in crumbs and fry in deep fat hot enough to brown an inch cube of bread in sixty seconds, or 350 degrees F., on a fat thermometer. It will take about three minutes to fry the croquettes. Drain and serve with a garnish of crisp parsley.

Love cannot be held in bondage. As surely as you try to imprison it, love slips out of your fingers, elusively as a summer rainbow or a wind song in the grass. Love is a gift, freely given, and freely received. When an affection becomes an obligation, it is no longer love. A man or woman who walks proudly would not try to tether the hawks of an emotion.

If Daisy Alexander Root had realized this, she would not be in jail today on a charge of murder for slaying her husband who had evicted an interest in a girl who sold cigarettes at an hotel counter. Mrs. Root wasn't living with her husband. Quite plainly his interest did not center in her. The thing with which she should have been concerned was not that he loved someone else—just that he didn't love her.

Complete Understanding Is Impossible. Love, real love, seeks the happiness of the loved one first of all. If sacrifice is necessary it makes it cheerfully. It realizes, too, the sense of its own importance and does not stoop to act unseemly. It will not humiliate itself by giving vent to bursts of undignified jealousy. It had too much self respect.

After all, if a man or woman spurns love that is worthy and which is given by one who has received the right to accord it, the spurner is the loser. If the one who is left alone goes melancholy in the tragic method that Mrs. Root did, it becomes apparent that there was little generosity in the affection in the first place. Self respect is the basis of love. A man or woman who does not have such a high regard for the affection he or she bestows can't expect the receiver to feel especially honored. Jealousy, which denotes a feeling of unworthiness, makes the affection appear shoddy and uncertain.

Two people may be very close to each other—so close that either knows instinctively when the other's mood withdraws for a minute. Two people may build the walls together that shut out all alien things. But there are no two people on the face of the Little girl who was orphaned in the Republican river flood in Nebraska and was cared for by Red Cross, which aided many hundreds in three states affected.

First word of terrific loss of life in Florida disaster came through Red Cross short wave radio, put up on the stricken keys by amateur operators. Here are shown the weary men after 48 hours continuous heroic work. Red Cross aided 1,000 families.

Fourteen children were killed when bus was hit by train at a Maryland crossing. Red Cross First Aiders rescued the living. Two such accidents with heavy toll of lives occurred during the year.

RECORD YEAR for DISASTERS

Red Cross Relief Given in 128 Catastrophes-Unusual and Varied Freaks of Nature and Other Calamities visit distress on Nation-People aided through Your Membership in Red Cross

One of 5,000 families in southern New York helped by Red Cross following disastrous high waters. During the year 29 floods occurred in the nation.

Epidemics of bronchial troubles followed devastating clouds of dust in midwest. Red Cross established hospitals for victims. Here are little patients and Red Cross nurses. Five other epidemics came under Red Cross care during the year.

Families marooned in Mississippi valley floods were taken from roofs by Red Cross rescuers. During the year the Red Cross gave disaster relief to 110,000 persons in 305 counties in 37 states.

This little girl arrived during the New York floods—Red Cross provided hospital care for mother and baby.

Red Cross is always quick to give inoculations against typhoid and other preventable diseases following disaster, in cooperation with state health authorities. This was scene following floods in New York.

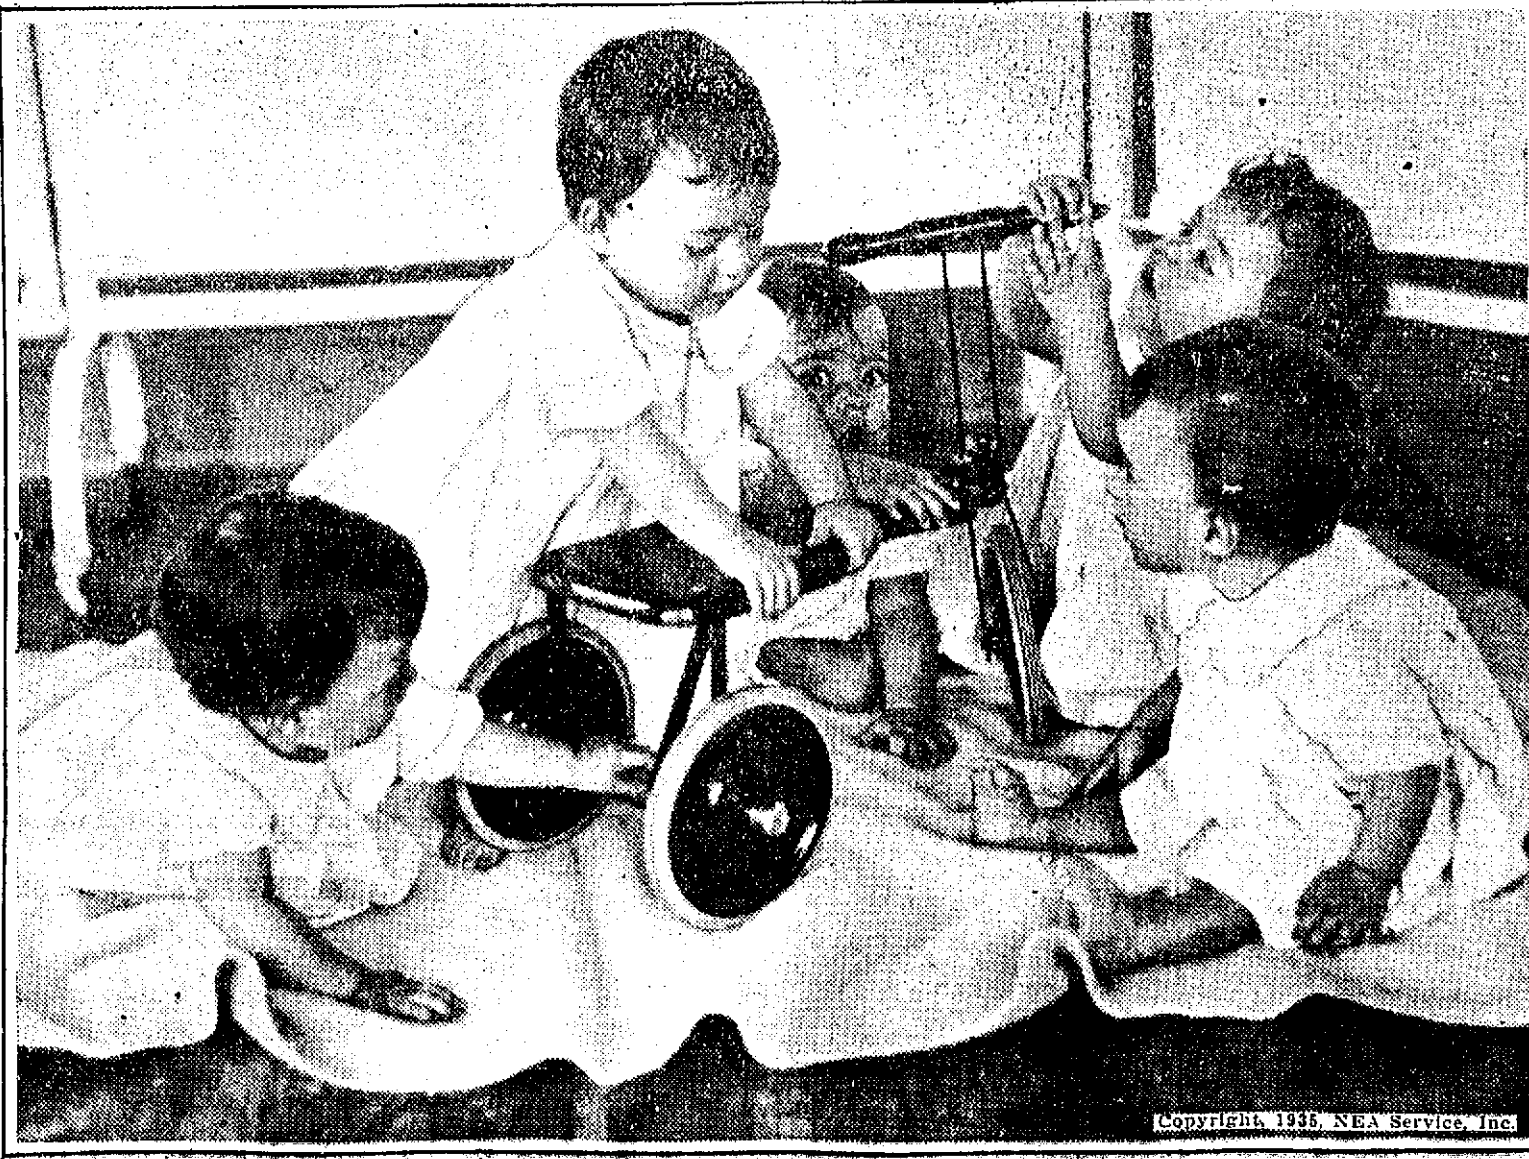

'It's a Light Car,' Says Emelie

After riding in that glittering kiddie car, ably assisted by Nurse Leroux, Emelie apparently is engaged in a critical appraisal of her new streamlining job. Or maybe that determined clutch on its handles means she just hates to leave her new toy.

Quins Inspect Their New Three-Wheeler

Budding Drivers Prepare for Kiddie Car Tour of Nurseryland

It's always wise, before starting on a spin to check up on one's car. So the Misses Dionne, shown clustered about their brand-new three-wheeler, apparently are giving it a careful "once-over." While Marie tests the rear axle, Annette intently examines the steering apparatus. Meanwhile, Emelie, unaware how perilously close her pink toes are to the rear wheel, gets ready to mount, unassisted, while Yvonne gazes in awe at her. Cecile, almost hidden, seems fearful that she won't get into the picture.

Heads Up! Annette's on Her Way!

"Gangway! Here I come!" Ready to glide down Nursery Boulevard, gleeful Annette grips the "steering wheel" of her one-quint-power kiddie car, and extends a pink foot for the starting push. Their new toy has brought a lot of fun to the merry Dionnes.

Jeremiah Is Topic for the Rev. Webb

"Opiates of Satan" Used to Lull People Into False Security

They have healed also the hurt of the daughter of my people slightly, saying, Peace, Peace; when there is no peace." Peremiah 6:14, was Rev. Webb's text for his Message Sunday night on "Snow, Hope and Hell."

Jeremiah's message said the Rev. Mr. Webb, "Was aimed at false prophets who were lulling people to sleep with their message of peace, peace, when there was no peace. If a physician were attending out of your relatives and would say to you that the patient was getting along fine, and you should discover after death had visited the home that the doctor had been administering opiates all the time, and that the seeming improvement of your loved one was just the effects of the opiate, you would feel that the physician had done you a great injustice. The snow part of my subject does not have reference to ordinary snow, but to an opiate called Heroin that is referred to as 'Sniffing Snow' by the underworld. It is a white flaky powder that is sprinkled on the hand and sniffed into the system. Dan McNally, a converted criminal who spent several years in the Missouri State Penitentiary told me that many of the daring robberies that have been committed in recent years have been committed by men under the influence of 'snow.' It seems to take away all fear.

"Satan has his opiates too. When folks get under conviction one of the most popular ways to trick them is to have them stay away from services, and a more popular way still is to have them begin a continual round of pleasure. To get rid of the feeling in your soul. God gave you that feeling toward you. Judgment to earn. Some say, 'Don't get stirred up about to warn you of judgment to come. Lulled to sleep. God gave you your conscience to protect you from eternity without God. Don't denude it. God has set over your soul the watch dog of your conscience. Don't play the fool and so denude your conscience that it will fall to warn you. You know that you need God. Turn to Him tonight.'

A number responded to the altar call after the sermon and were converted. Bro. Webb announced the following subjects for the week.

Monday night—"Healed of an Incurable Disease."

Tuesday night—"Are You Mad?"

Wednesday night—"In the Wrong Crowd."

Thursday night—"The Great Tribulation, What It Is and Whom It Will Effect."

Friday night—"Mr. Henry will Give His Life's Story."

Sunday night—"God's Starvation Committee."

In this summary, the agreement was hailed as marking "a revolution in the trade relations between the two countries. It said the larger part of American export trade with Canada was covered, while this government's concessions to her Northern neighbor affected commodities which accounted for about two-thirds of our total imports from Canada in 1929.

In addition to the tariff reduction, the treaty also contains an important concession by Canada in an agreement to revise substantially its present system of arbitrary valuations applied to American products.

Where There's Smoke, Something's Hidden From Enemy Fire

New York wearing a halo? No, no! It's still too venial a place for that! The effect of a nato encircling the towering skyscrapers of lower Manhattan is just part of the smoke screen by which U. S. Army planes concealed the city to defend it from attack by a supposed "enemy" air fleet. The army strategists reported the maneuver successful—and the picture attests the photographic success of the flight.

Thelma Lee Dillard, 15, Fatally Hurt on Road North of Waldo

MAGNOLIA, Ark.—Thelma Lee Dillard, 15-year-old Rosston school girl, injured Friday night in a school bus-truck accident eight miles north of Waldo, died in a Magnolia hospital Sunday.

She received a fractured skull and other injuries.

Felts Hart, 19, member of the Rosston basketball team, also injured in the accident, had developed traumatic double pneumonia and his condition is serious.

Eddie Hart, father of the boy and a brother, Wendell Hart of Memphis, Texas, arrived Sunday to be at his bedside.

The body of Miss Dillard was taken to the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Dillard at Rosston Sunday afternoon. Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. Monday at Bluff Springs, near Rosston.

She is survived besides her parents by two brothers, J. D. Dillard and Bernice Carol Dillard; one sister, Miss Bonnie Sue Dillard, all of Rosston; one grandmother, Mrs. J. W. Dillard of Rosston, and one grandfather, T. J. Mason of Mt. Moriah.

Miss Lera Dillard, 14, and Dee Jackson, 18, also injured in the crash were reported as recovering.

Twenty-six other students and teachers had a miraculous escape when one side of the school bus was smashed when struck by the truck.

Hollywood

By Paul Harrison

HOLLYWOOD—Behind the screen: On a drawing-room set for Columbia's "No More Yesterday's," Ruth Chatterton is a brown-and-orange vision challenging belief that her stage career began more than 25 years ago. She hasn't played Broadway in a decade, but now and then reads and rejects a play script sent by some hopeful producer.

You immediately recognize a stage-trained actress as she effortlessly goes through long speeches in this flicker sequence. She knows her entire role. Other performers sometimes falter in their lines because they try to learn them only a few moments before rehearsal.

Marion Gering is a painstaking director, who demands many rehearsals; won't shoot until he's confident of a perfect first take. Saves miles of celluloid.

Free for a moment's rest, Miss Chatterton invites me to watch Marian Marsh, one of Hollywood's skyrocketing ingenues.

"Notice all her different expressions," whispers the elder actress. "And when she smiles she looks like Marlene Dietrich."

No Detail Overlooked

Here's a night club that will be part of the "Fanie on the Air." Ann Southern and Lloyd Nolan have just finished a scene which required many takes and the smoking of as many cigarettes. But that was business smoking, puffed under tension, and now they're borrowing cigarettes to smoke for relaxation.

Among the properties for this picture is a little stack of stationery, which illustrates how meticulous is the preparation incident to picture making. Nowhere in the script is its appearance called for. But the property man figured that the director

"Northeast" Roars Out to Sea Leaving Millions Property Loss

The worst "northeast" in many years roared out to sea Monday after pounding the North Atlantic coast with devastating fury from Cape Cod to Cape Hatteras.

The seaboard states from Maine to North Carolina suffered property damages amounting to several million dollars.

The freighter Florida reached a safe anchorage in Hampton Roads, accompanied by the Coast Guard cutter Sebago. The freighter was badly damaged by heavy seas Sunday.

FIRST DOWN -AND THEN SOME BY HARRY GRAYSON

EVANSTON, Ill.—Lynn O. Waldorf, whose Northwestern Wildcats sprang the biggest upset of the year against Notre Dame, continued in the coaching profession because he gets a lot of fun out of it. He says that when it comes to be sport he will quit.

Waldorf believes that the players should enjoy football and, as a consequence, is not the driving type. He prides himself on the fact that during every practice something occurs to give the athletes and coaches a belly laugh.

"I try not to have the players under pressure at any time," asserts Waldorf. "We made no effort to key the team before the Notre Dame game. All week our boys were like a bunch of kids without a care in the world. They entered the game with that attitude, and I suspect that it played an important part in the outcome."

It is quite unnecessary for Waldorf to say that the 14-7 victory over the Irish—Northwestern's first triumph over Notre Dame in 34 years that the institutions have been competing—was the most satisfying of his career.

"The victory was thrilling to us for an even better reason than that it was over Notre Dame and at South Bend," beams Waldorf. "It served as the happy culmination for boys who had suffered three defeats."

"It truly was a squad victory. No one player dominated our play."

Waldorf Makes Use of Plays Run Against Northwestern

Waldorf's style of play is based on no one system. The varsity lines up in a basic four, four, three position, and then shifts into a variety of formations, including the Warner single wing, double wing, punt formation, etc.

Lynn O.'s system is a hybrid one.

In one of the early games this autumn, the opponents gained rather consistently with a certain play. Waldorf thought so much of this play that he adopted it and the following week this same play gained ground for the Purple.

Waldorf has been termed a November coach, and not without reason. In seven years his clubs have lost only two contests in November, and these were in his first season as head coach of a major team at Oklahoma A. & M.

But, at he points out, his teams have lost a lot of October engagements. This year the Evanston array dropped three Western Conference contests in October, but starting again Illinois at Champaign on Nov. 2, it has chopped two important starts in succession.

"We make haste slowly," explains Waldorf. "We don't try to bring the players along rapidly. I guess I never have learned to bring a team to top form soon enough. It is one of those things that I must get around to doing."

This—his first season at Northwestern, where he inherited one of the most severe schedules ever attempted—is the first year that a Waldorf-coached squad ever has lost three battles in a row, those being to three of the most powerful teams on the gridiron today, Purdue, Ohio State, and Minnesota.
